To the Citizens of Oregon!

A. H. FRANCIS,

FOR many years a Merchant in Portland, has opened a Commission House in Victoria, V I, for the sale of all kinds of flour, grain, bacon, butter, eggs, apples, &c., &c. All those having such articles to dispose of, and are desirous of turning them speedily into cash, at fair prices, will be accommodated by shipping to A. H. F, Victoria, V. I. My well known reputation as a merchant in Portland and my acquaintances and large trade in Victoria since 1859, will, I venture to say, be sufficient guarantee that every attention to quick and safe sales, and prompt remittances, subject to the order of the consignees, will be strictly adhered to My business shall be strictly CASH I would recommend shippers to ship the best quality of articles

The Great German Duel

Cornelius O Dowd in Blackwood's Magazine, whom everybody has long since identified as Charles Lever the novelist—he who created "Harry Lorrequer" and "Charles O Mally" and Roland Cashel and Davenport Dunn and we grieve to add that most unnatural and absurd old gentleman Sir Brook Fosbrooke — well he has been writing in Blackwood about what he calls the Great German Duel No one ever gave Lever the credit of knowing even of having seriously thought about politics but as Cornelius O Dowd, he has entered pretty fully into them during the last two or three years in his Blackwood contributions Now and then he makes a points such as a clever man often will make but he has sometimes hit wildly about him and advocated the wrong cause Long ago we dare say Cornelius O Dowd has quite forgotten that during our rebellion his tenderest sympathies were bestowed upon 'the so called Southern Confederation that he respected Jefferson Davis as a second Cromwell, that he regarded Lee as a new and improved edition of Wellington that he venerated Raphael Semmes the pirate as another Nelson and that he cherished the fond expectation of being paid in gold, with interest, for such of the Confederate bonds as he had invested in, on the assurance of their redemption six months after the independence of rebeldom was acknowledged by the United States and the rest of mankind' The rebellion collapsed, and the brave O Dowd immediately threw a somersault and came out in Blackwood as a great admirer of the American Union

It was a noted characteristic of Cobbett, the ablest political writer and the least consistent that ever graced British journalism, that though he advocated one principle yesterday and another principle to day he wrote very persuasively on both sides of the question, simply because while writing he was in earnest for the time and firmly believed that his pen was putting words of wisdom upon the paper He had the happy faculty, on such occasions and they were frequent, of forgetting all that he might have previously written on the other side He wrote, in the best Saxon phraseology what he really had worked himself up into believing No man, whether with pen or voice can persuade readers and auditors unless there is in his own mind a thorough belief of what he writes or speaks In 'My Novel," where Lord Lytton (as yet his new title does not come flippantly off the lips) describes the election at Lansmere, he makes Audley Egerton point out to Randal Leslie wherein lay his fault as a public speaker Where?" asked Leslie, with jealous sullenness 'In not believing a single word you say" answered Egerton, very dryly The converse of this is true of Cobbett and Lever, and other clever and impulsive writers They are wound up as it were to a certain degree of locomotion, and for the time being, in what they are preparing for the press, and their energy and confidence often obtain credence which fact and logic more coldly put have failed to win Mr Lever, or rather the individual called 'Cornelius O'Dowd," was in earnest no doubt when he sided with the Confederates and mistook Jefferson Davis for a hero of chivalry, and was in earnest also when, on the failure of the rebellion he wrote in praise of the Union At most times he writes well and ought to understand European politics at least, seeing that nearly the last thirty years of his life have been passed in continental travel and residence—largely in Germany the point to which all political speculations are now directed—and he has mixed freely with all classes of society, with the advantage of being admitted, on account of his literary ability and reputation, into the usually exclusive circle of the highest Hence he can write understandly about the late war and we think that he writes from knowledge as well as belief which was not the case when America was his theme

O'Dowd, writing about men and things touches upon the great German duel, in which, he says, France (that is, Napoleon) was second He fancies that Napoleon's desire was to see Italy beaten and discouraged in the early stage of the contest, after which his own 'intervention' would come into play General La Marmora knocked his head against the Quadrilateral and got beaten at Custozza but two things next happened unexpectedly First, Italy did not even hint that French assistance would be needed, and next Venetia, for possession of which Italians fought, was ceded to Napoleon by Austria Italy, however wanted more than this territory—wanted to show Europe that she could battle without foreign aid As for Austria having vindicated her honor by victory she placed Venetia in Napoleon s hands in trust for Italy, and thereby spoiled his game That cession of Venetia destroyed all pretext for French interference

Thus checkmated in the South, Napoleon turned to the North And there O'Dowd introduces an anecdote which may or may not be true It runs thus 'It is said amongst those who discuss these matters with more knowledge than usually falls to us of the outer world, that when M Bismarck was at Biarritz he explained his plan to the Emperor not only as to show the quarrel with Austria was to be fomented into a war, but what he anticipated as the consequences of the campaign Prussia I am well aware, said he can neither put into the field such an army as Austria nor provide the reserves that a reverse will call for We shall be beaten—not ignominiously, I hope and believe but overpowered and repulsed By this time you the French will be ready to come in and as to the terms—here it is said he significantly passed his finger along the line of the Rhine which lay on a map on the table—we shall not dispute them By this adroit stratagem he provided for French attention Louis Napoleon had been promised his bribe he was only asked to wait for the opportune moment to receive it ' Now flushed with conquest Prussia will not cede any territory to France but if the Austrian videttes were at Potsdam, it would have been very different Prussia was so well provided for war even without the terrible needle guns, that of her ability to strike Austria heavily, Bismarck could not have a doubt France whose original policy was to save Prussia had to interfere, when the battle of Koniggratz decided the campaign in favor of Austria, and did this by its notice of July 20th to Prussia that now the war must end and at the very walls of Vienna Prussia had to draw back and hold her hand Had Bismarck struck another blow, France would have gone in and helped Austria to conquer the conqueror

Napoleon was cleverly tricked by Bismarck, who is more than his match in politics If both men live a year or two longer Austria aided by France, may again be in the field against Prussia—but long before that, burly King William will probably have assumed the title as he has the sway of Emperor of Germany Indeed it is believed that when the new German Parliament meets early in 1867 it will solemnly proclaim William as Emperor — Washington Chronicle

A book bearing this title has been written by P C Headley It contains some documents which we have never before seen in print We copy the following:

After the consultation of General Butler with his officers at the Girard House at dead of night with the rapidity of a strong mind stimulated to its quickest thought by the rush of events, he made out in writing his plan of operations This was to be forwarded after his departure for the Maryland border to Governor Andrew that the Executive and the people of the State might know what it was, should he not survive the attempt to reach Washington We give entire the interesting memorial of plan and reasons for proceeding to Annapolis

'I have detailed Captain Devereux and Captain Briggs with their commands supplied with one day s rations and twenty rounds of ammunition to take possession of the ferry boat at Havre de Grace for the benefit of this expedition This I have done with the concurrence of the present master of transportation of the road The Eighth Regiment will remain at quarters that they may get a little sol I rest after their fatiguing march I have sent to know if the Seventh Regiment will go with me I propose to march myself at the hour of seven o clock in the morning, to take the regular 8½ o clock train to Havre de Grace The citizens of Baltimore at a large meeting this evening, denounced the passage of Northern troops They have exacted a promise from the President of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad not to send troops over that road through Baltimore so that any attempt to throw troops into Baltimore entails a march of forty miles, and an attack on a city of 200 000 inhabitants at the beginning of the march The only way therefore of getting communication with Washington, for troops from the North, is over the Baltimore and Ohio Railway, or marching from the west Commodore Dupont, at the Navy Yard, has given me instructions of the fact in accordance with these general statements, upon which I rely I have therefore, thought I could rely upon these statements as to the time it will take to proceed in marching from Havre de Grace to Washington My proposition is to join with Colonel Lefforts, of the Seventh Regiment of New York I propose to take the 1,500 troops to Annapolis arriving there to morrow about 4 o clock, and occupy the Capital of Maryland, and thus call the State to account for the death of Massachusetts men, my friends and neighbors If Colonel Lefforts thinks it more in accordance with the tenor of his instructions to wait rather than go through Baltimore, I still propose to march with this regiment. I propose to occupy the town, and hold it open as a means of communication I have then, but to advance by a forced march of thirty miles to reach the Capital, in accordance with the orders I first received but which subsequent events in my judgment, vary in their execution, believing from the telegraphs that there will be others in great numbers to aid me Being accompanied by officers of more experience, who will be able to direct the affair, I think it will be accomplished We have no light batteries; I have therefore telegraphed to Governor Andrew to have the Boston Light Battery put on shipboard at once, to night to help me in marching on Washington In pursuance of this plan I have detailed Captains Devereux and Briggs with their commands, to hold the boat at Havre de Grace

GRIMALDI THE CLOWN —We find in the London Era an interesting letter from an old play goer, describing the last appearance of Grimaldi, the clown, at Drury Lane Theatre, in 1828

Grimaldi took his farewell benefit at Drury Lane Theater, and appeared as Clown in the barber shop scene in "Mother Goose" In that scene he was placed in a chair to be shaved Ellar and Barnes were engaged in the scene, which occupied but a few minutes, and the chair was removed, Grimaldi finishing with the songs "Hot Codlins" and "Tippitywitchit' after which four scenes from different pantomimes were played by four sets of pantomimists in one of which Grimaldi played clown These performances afforded Grimaldi ample time to prepare and dress himself for his final appearance and farewell address An hour had now passed away, and the greatest excitement prevailed throughout a crowded house to see and hear the last of the great favorite At length the stage bell sounded, and slowly rose the green curtain "Now all was silent as the grave' In a minute a person of small stature, dressed in deep black, and with gray hair the very type of a venerable member of the clerical profession looking careworn and melancholy, limped slowly from the P S to the centre foot lights 'Twas Grimaldi for the last time The cheering was tremendous, combined with the deepest sympathy from the whole audience for the small sample of used up humanity who stood before them' Could that possibly be the same face which had but an hour since electrified the thousands with its broad grin? Yes it was poor Joey Grimaldi for the last time When the ovation had partly subsided he attempted to proceed with his address, but the cheering was almost incessant, which made the short address a disjointed affair The following portion of the address I distinctly remember Ladies and gentlemen it is supposed that I am an old man, now I assure you that my age is only forty eight. I can remember the time when I could walk better on my hands than I can now on my feet, at that time I have had a fowl in one pocket and sauce for it in the other On this stage I made my first appearance forty five years ago, and this night I have come to make my last [Immense cheering] Grimaldi was now quite overcome with emotion, and raising a white pocket handkerchief to his face, seemed quite bewildered. All the pantomimists who had been playing, for him stood at the back, and he, looking around seemed to make an effort to thank them, but it was all up with him His son and Tom Ellar stepped forward and assisted him mournfully to the wing, when, with one glance at the audience the greatest clown in the world passed away forever, without the power to say farewell

Eloquent and True

Among the many eloquent addresses delivered at the late China Mail banquet in San Francisco, we consider the following by the Rev Dr Stone, as particularly suggestive and pertinent to the occasion In reply to the seventh regular toast 'The influence of Commerce on Literature and the Arts 'Through the aid of Letters, Venetian galleys became Venetian galleries," Dr Stone said

MR PRESIDENT —The old year has gone down to night upon the old past and a new year has risen upon a new future If the event which occasions our evening festival were only a piece of money making speculation, like an expedition to some Island of the sea to dig up Captain Kidd s treasure, we might, perhaps, as many of us as hoped to touch the profits, put our heads together to look after our stock and to calculate the chances of our venture But no such scheme would draw together in festive congratulation an assembly like this, no such venture, however it might succeed, would have power to inaugurate with the dawn of the incoming year a brighter future for America and humanity

The real character of the event which makes our jubilee to-night has been well set forth in the just and eloquent remarks to which we have already listened And the sentiment now offered and receiving its response by acclamation celebrates this event as having grand connections with the growth of literature and the progress of arts

Commerce is an explorer Its written explorations are literature It is a student of geography The records of such study and research are literature It questions the products of divers climes and the order of elemental law It compares man with man in his native original, his social state, his governments, his religions and his systems of education, and there questions and their answers make a copious and living literature. It bears abroad and brings home the type of comparative civilization, in their chief expressions—the coarser and ruder, and the more consummate and refined—and thus stimulate inventions, and bears back and forth the keys to the laboratories of all the arts

Tell us how our Oriental neighbors live, how they build, how they clothe themselves, how they fashion the tools of all craftsmanship, how they decorate the walls of all public and private wealth, and we shall find that we have some thing to learn, and American art will start forth on new achievements Tell them the same story of society here—and this story, commerce, by its interchanges, is always repeating—and they will find that they can learn of us, and the riches of the two civilizations in all that relates both to thought and art will become the heritage of both—a literature and an art for one third of the human race!

Give us this new breadth and expansion for our American enterprise and our American civilization, and the intellect of this land, in all that it knows and dreams and produces, will have such a new heritage of wealth and power as has never fallen before by a single bequest to the lot of any people Shut up a nation to itself as by some old Tartar wall that keeps out every alien foot step and keep itself at home in perpetual isolation, and the mind is stifled and dwarfed, the very Emperor that built that famous old wall ordered the destruction of the whole body of Chinese literature, that Chinese history might begin with his own dynasty. Throw down all the walls of exclusion between nation and nation, and the rejoicing intellect, following the prow of world wide commerce, will range all lands and peoples, and build its hives of honeyed sweets from the flowering of every clime

And over this bridal hour of the Orient and the Occident, thus made one by the golden chain of Commerce, we may well breathe, in the name of Literature and Art, and the whole of Christian civilization, this ancient nuptial blessing "What God hath joined together, let no man put asunder"

Escapade of Cats—A Rich Story

The thriving town of Richmond, (Ill,) one day recently was the scene of a sensation and a catastrophe. The sensation was caused by the advent of Van Amburgh & Co.'s Mammoth Menagerie The catastrophe we propose to describe.

On the day in question, an immense crowd had been attracted to see the living giraffe, and other wonders of the menagerie The caravan had made its grand procession through the streets, the tent had been erected, and a throng of expectant sight-seers were gathered around the entrance, awaiting the opening of the doors. Just then an odd looking genius drove up to the lot, seated upon a rickety lumber wagon, carefully boarded over, drawn by a pair of spavined, wind galled, dilapidated steeds, and eagerly enquired for the manager Upon that person making his appearance he was saluted with

"Hollo, Squire, I've brought you a load of cats!"

A load of what?" said the astonished manager

'A load of cats to feed your lions on "

"To feed our lions on! The deuce you have We don't feed our lions on cat meat, they eat nothing but the best beef"

'Sho I know better than that, I've read in the papers that cats are the favorite food of lions Besides, I've got a contract with your agent for a load of 'em, with a revenue stamp onto it, and I guess you can't go back on that " Saying which, the cat merchant produced a greasy slip of paper which read as follows

RICHMOND, Oct. 5, 1866.

This contract witnesseth that I have this day contracted with Simon Wiggins to furnish a load of cats to feed lions on, for which you will pay him the hereinafter prices to wit For A 1. Prime Cats, 75 cts , for Store Cats 50 cts

JONAS BUNG,
Cat Agent Van Amburgh & Co 's Menagerie
To the Managerie "

"My friend," said the manager after reading this document, "you have been imposed upon I do not know any such person as Jonas Bung, and I don't want any cats "

'You lie, now you know you do"—retorted Wiggins, with imperturbable good humor, "you are only trying to beat me down and get 'em cheap I've got a prime lot—75 of em Just look at 'em!'—and hastily descending from his perch he commenced shoving at the tail board of his wagon to allow the manager a chance to examine his load By his nervousness, however, he managed so awkwardly that the board dropped completely out and with a terrible sputtering his entire load of cats sprang into the crowd A score of worthless curs that were on the ground made a dash for the cats, and away they went helter skelter among the throng, upsetting women and children, and creating dire confusion on every side Towards the town the streets were filled with people proceeding to the menagerie, who, seeing the commotion, and hearing the shouts at once imagined some terrible accident The next instant some rumor spread through the crowd that the Royal Bengal Tiger was loose and a scene ensued that beggars description 'Everyone for himself and the d—l take the hindermost, was the motto acted on, and a general stampede followed, in which an astonishing display of agility was made People ran into houses and bolted their doors ladies in tilting hoops performed extraordinary exploits in the way of climbing fences and what with sputtering cats yelping dogs screaming women and howling children, it really seemed for a while as if Bedlam had broken loose and taken possession of the streets of Richmond In a short time the truth of the matter became known and the excitement quieted down But Mr Wiggins refused to be comforted for the overthrow of the great expectations he had built upon his cats and inconsolately drove out of town muttering terrible vengeance if he caught him upon the depraved individual who had palmed himself off as cat agent of Van Amburgh & Co s Menagerie — Rand du Lac Press

SATURDAY MORNING, JANUARY 26, 1867.

Washington vs. Jefferson.

During the Administration of the elder Adams, while Jefferson was Vice President, the effort began to accomplish the overthrow of the party which, from the adoption of the Constitution till that time, had held possession of the Government and directed its policy. Jefferson was the leader of this onslaught upon the party of Washington, Hamilton and Adams. He labored with indefatigable zeal for the overthrow of the Administration and for his own aggrandizement. The party which he headed came into power shortly afterwards as anti-Federalists, and its existence has been continued to the present day,—being known successively as the Republican and Democratic party. The formation of this party, and its avowal of its designs, gave great concern to Washington and other leaders of the Federal party, who saw in its anti-national, nullifying principles, as expressed in the Kentucky and Virginia Resolutions of '98 and '99, the greatest danger to the peace and security of the country. Against this party Washington entered into the canvass of 1799 with great zeal. He wrote a letter to Patrick Henry, pointing out the designs of this rising party, and the dangers which were to be apprehended from them. Said he: "It would be a waste of time to attempt to bring to the view of a person of your observation, the endeavors of a certain party among us to disquiet the public mind with unfounded alarms, to arraign every act of the Administration, to set the people at variance with the Government, and embarrass all its measures. Unfortunately, and extremely do I regret it, the State of Virginia has taken the lead in this opposition. I have said State, because the conduct of its Legislature in the eyes of the world will authorize the expression; * * * though, in no State except Kentucky, that I have heard of, has legislative countenance been obtained beyond Virginia."

Further on, in the same letter, Washington speaks of the leading men of this party as persons "who are opposed to the General Government, and who, by the tendency of their measures, would destroy the Union." This was the estimate placed by the Father of his Country upon the party which was headed by Jefferson, and which was then intriguing and struggling to wrest the Government from the hands of those who, until then, had controlled its policy. The final attempt of this anti-national party to dissolve the Union, using as a pretext and a justification the dogmas enunciated by Jefferson, affords conclusive proof that Washington was right in his view of the tendency of the measures of this party, and is an evidence of the political sagacity of this first of patriots.

Again, Washington speaks of this party as "systematically and pertinaciously pursuing measures which must eventually dissolve the Union, or produce coercion." How just this opinion; how prophetic this declaration! Civil war was the natural result of the policy of this party. Washington foresaw it, and gave the warning. Hamilton likewise anticipated it. But the people, deceived by a name, and led astray by specious pretences, forgot the danger. They have since had occasion to remember it. They have paid dearly for their credulity in listening to those who took the Government out of the hands of its founders and pledged it to the un-national policy of the State rights theorists and nullifiers.

In the same letter from which we have quoted above, Washington continues: "Vain will it be to look for peace and happiness, for security of liberty or property, if civil discord should ensue. And what else can result from the policy of those among us who, by all the measures in their power, are driving matters to extremity, if they cannot be counteracted effectually? The views of men can only be guessed at by their words or actions. Can those of the leaders of the opposition be mistaken if they are judged by this rule?" "Of the leaders of this opposition," remarks Hildreth, "Jefferson was undoubtedly chief; and this letter alone is quite sufficient to settle the mooted, but in no respect doubtful question of Washington's final opinion of his once trusted Secretary of State."

This party is never weary of singing praises to the memory of Jefferson. Long ago it apotheosised him. It pretends to regard it as sacrilege to say aught against him. But against the name of Jefferson may be opposed the greater name of Washington. We have shown above, with what apprehensions Washington regard the designs of the party of which Jefferson was founder. It would be easy to show from authentic, recognized history, in what light the best men of that time regarded Jefferson himself. History has stripped from him the disguise in which his partisans were wont to make him appear, and he is now seen in his real character. Skilled in craft and dissimulation; ever ready to thrust others forward as advocates of measures which he was afraid to avow; false in his professions of friendship; insincere and even inveracious in his dealings with those with whom he was politically associated; continually intriguing and caballing against those to whom he made professions of service; the founder of a party which disturbed the order and reversed the policy of Government as established by its fathers; the man whom Washington learned to distrust and whose political principles Washington predicted would, if not counteracted, bring the country to ruin, he appears to those who have studied his character with candor instead of in a spirit of servile adulation, to be a far different person from the man his partisan admirers would make him. In writing this, we have only written what is recorded in history. If this is slanderous, so are the best histories of those times. The measures originated by Jefferson when he founded his party have had their day. They culminated, as Washington foretold, in an attempt to dissolve the Union, and made it necessary to employ coercion to defeat the project. The country, after its late bitter experience, will not again be betrayed into the adoption of measures similar to those which produced the recent terrible disorders. The anti-national policy of the party founded by Jefferson will not gain the ascendant again.

The Idaho Statesman thinks that the U. S. mails, and particularly those carried over the Chico route, are a blessing to that part of mankind domiciled in Idaho. The other day the Statesman received from Stratman, of San Francisco a fine large bundle of newspapers and magazines, which had been but a little over two months on the way. Whereat the Statesman is greatly encouraged, and thinks the Chico route an extraordinary thing.

In reading what the Herald has had to say during the last two or three days about Burr, Jefferson, Hamilton and their coevals, we have been quite surprised to find that the editor has had nothing to say about his personal acquaintance and intimacy with those distinguished men. He has such a habit of boasting of such things that his omission in this case is well calculated to excite surprise.

There is no telling how many times Max. has left Mexico and returned during the last week. The line having been down, we have not been able to obtain the New York Herald's special dispatches on this subject. Our anxiety about Max. is becoming intense.

About 5,000 claims have been located in the Washington quartz district, which embraces Warren's Diggings and the surrounding country in Idaho county, Idaho Territory. So says the Lewiston Journal.

The South Advised to Do Something.

The Louisville Journal, which has been one of the doughtiest opponents of the Constitutional Amendment and the general policy of Congress, now perceives the danger which the doctrine of passive resistance may entail upon the Southern States. The mere rejection of the Amendment is not enough, the Journal tells the South there should be a counter-proposition, and that speedily:

The time has evidently come for the South to do something, if it can honorably do anything. The North, through the respective organs of its several parties, has called upon the South to offer a counter-project. The New York World, speaking for the Democratic party; the New York Times, speaking for the moderate Radicals, and now Chief Justice Chase, speaking for the extreme Radicals, all invite the South to come forward, and propose what she thinks best in view of the situation. The North unanimously invites the South to offer a counter-project. In our judgment, this invitation cannot be prudently disregarded, if there is any feasible counter-project which the South may offer consistently with her own honor; and a Constitutional Convention is certainly such a counter-project. And we do not see that there is any other. We do not believe there is any other. We, therefore, hope that the South, with or without the recommendation of the President, will propose this counter-project.

The New York Times, in commenting on this subject, says: "They who insist that the South shall ignore political questions, disregard the wishes or acts of Congress, and leave matters to take their course without an effort to guide or arrest them, are laying the foundation of serious difficulties. As a means of precipitating another collision it might be tolerably effective. As a method of delivering the South from its troubles, it is sheer wickedness and folly."

All this has been apparent from the first to everybody except to those men of the South whose willful blindness no experience, however severe, can cure. Like Napoleon's Bourbons, they learn nothing and forget nothing; they gain no wisdom by experience, and unlearn none of the follies which have so often brought them into the gravest difficulties.

After the severe lessons of the last six years, it seems incredible that these men should yet believe that the will of the nation can be thwarted, either by anything they can do, or by their persistent, dogged determination to do nothing. They have not been successful of late, in any issue they have raised with the North; and if they were capable of learning anything they would by this time have discovered that it is not the part of wisdom to provoke such contests. The North will not abate one jot of its demands. The day of compromises and of Northern humiliation was ended when the South appealed to the sword. If the South ever obtains what she now demands as her rights, she must perform the conditions that are required of her. Her friends may well advise her to do something; but they would advise most wisely who would counsel an unconditional acceptance of the terms already proposed. No counter-proposition can prevail.

The San Francisco Times, speaking about the course which has been pursued in relation to Jeff. Davis, truly says: "If Jeff. Davis was not guilty of crimes which should bring him to death, our courts are a mockery of justice; and yet, Johnson saw fit to postpone and quibble about the prompt and vigorous action which would have removed forever one disturbing element of the public peace, and brought a great criminal to speedy justice. By a whiffling and ineffective policy, the trial of Davis was left to dribble into nice points of judicial metaphysics, and the wretch who should have been as summarily disposed of as Mrs. Surratt or Harold, was permitted to live and be a stumbling-block to justice and a source of constant irritation to the people who would once have acquiesced unanimously in his sharp extinguishment."

The following is one of the sections of the bill lately introduced in the House to reinstate civil government in States which destroyed their governments by rebellion:

Seventh: That the present organization set up under martial law by the military power of the President, and all officers in said district charged with the execution of civil regulations therein, except the regular officers of the United States, shall cease to be such, and their functions and powers shall terminate at such time as may be provided by the said Convention after the recognition and approval by Congress of the State Constitution and civil government provided for and sought to be established under this act.

FROM IDAHO.

We have received the initial number of a paper published by A. Leland & Son, at Lewiston, I. T., which bears the name of Lewiston Journal. It is a small, but well filled and beautifully printed sheet. From it we glean the annexed items of intelligence:

ELK CITY MINES.

The mines of the Elk City region have kept up their reputation during the past year, and those conversant with their continued prospects seem confident that they will not become exhausted for many years. Business there during the winter is dull, as a great portion of the miners of that camp spend the winter in the lower towns. Some valuable quartz leads have been discovered there during the past season. Assays of the ore have been made in this place with the most satisfactory results. We mention the following leads:

Stintz vein, 2 feet wide, silver bearing, situate on Gold Hill, 1½ miles west of Elk City. An assay of the ore showed $800 per ton.

Uncle Sam vein, 1½ feet wide, gold bearing, situate ½ mile east of Elk City. Assays from $600 to $1,300 per ton.

Nez Perce vein, 1½ feet wide, gold bearing, situate 2½ miles southeast of the town. An assay of the ore showed $70 per ton.

Newsome Creek and Clearwater Station are each good mining camps, and together with Elk City will be extensively worked next season.

All the above camps are in Nez Perce county, and add no inconsiderable amount to the business of Lewiston, their mart for trade.

FREIGHTING FROM LEWISTON.

About 20 pack trains, averaging 25 animals each, are wintering near Lewiston. These trains were constantly employed last summer in packing goods from this place. Add to these about 150 other animals, equal to 6 other trains of equal size, which now winter at points above this, which were also packing from this place all the season past. Each of these 26 trains averaged 8 trips during the season, to the respective points of Warrens, Florence, Elk City, Clearwater, Oro Fino and Salmon River, carrying about 7,500 lbs. each trip, making a total of 780 tons of goods which these trains took from this town last summer to the camps above. Add to this about 300 tons which left by wagons and outside trains to Kootenai and Blackfoot, and we have nearly 1,100 tons of goods as the approximate estimate of what was shipped from Lewiston last season.

The Oregon Steam Navigation Co.'s boats brought to this place last season about 1,500 tons of goods. Since their boats stopped running, a number of large teams have been constantly employed in bringing goods from Wallula to this place. This market now is not better stocked than it was at the commencement of last season. So say the knowing ones. The foregoing will post the doubtful about the business of this place. The freights alone, on goods, to and from this place, during the past season, have exceeded $400,000; and yet Lewiston is classed abroad as having no business.

PALOUSE MINES.

The recent discoveries on the head of the Palouse, are promising well. The gold is worth over $18 per ounce, and is coarse. The climate of the diggings is much more more mild than at other camps East of us. About 76 men have winter quarters there, and will be able to work on their claims much of the season. Confident hopes are entertained that the mines in that vicinity, will become highly remunerative the coming season.

ROOFING.

Mr. Townsend has made the discovery of a fine variety of slate rock, about two miles from this place. On exposure to a red heat and suddenly cooling, it does not shall off or crumble in the least. Slabs of several feet in length and breadth, and of a fourth or half inch in thickness, can easily be quarried from this ledge. It compares well with the slate used for roofing in many of the Eastern cities.

ORO FINO DISTRICT.

Mining in the Oro Fino District during the past season has been attended with much success. The camp was worked from about the 10th of April up to the 1st of December. The population of the District averaged during this time about 125 white men and 550 Chinese. About 80 of the former and 250 of the latter were constantly employed in mining. The product of that labor has been upwards of $300,000, making an average of over $5 a day per man, including Chinese.

The labor of the white miners has been principally confined to Canal gulch, Rhodes' creek, and the hill diggings between these two creeks, while the Chinese have occupied Oro Fino flat and creek, Oro Grande, French creek and Bald Mountain, as well as some parts of Canal gulch and Rhodes' creek.

Sixty-four white men and about 400 Chinese are wintering in that district with good prospects for the next season. It is estimated that not less than 100 Chinese will be employed there next summer.

Some little quartz has been found there, but no leads which have attracted attention, as promising to pay for working. Some veins have been recorded in that district by outside parties who have claimed to make good discoveries. But little is definitely and publicly known of their whereabouts or their value.

SNOW.

The expressmen from Oro Fino, Elk City, and Warren's, report the depth of the snow at Oro Fino to be about two and a half feet; at Elk City less than two feet; on the mountains, this side, about five feet; at Warren's about eighteen inches; on the trail between Salmon river and Warren's about four feet. No snow on the trail between the mouth of Slate creek and the mouth of French creek. But little snow on Cammas prairie. From one to two feet on Craig's mountain.

DEATH OF HON. WM. M'DANIELS.

Hon. Wm. McDaniels—whose death we have announced—possessed a mind of more than ordinary power. His early education was neglected. When a young man he commanded a steamboat on the Mississippi river, and with his means thus acquired, he educated a younger sister, who, in turn, went upon his boat, and taught him the rudiments of an English education. In the Florida war he served as a quartermaster in the army. He was chosen to, and served in the State Senate of Missouri for several terms. In 1846 he was elected to Congress from that State, and served one term. He became a good speaker and debater. In 1849 he came to California, where he filled the office of a Register in one of the Land Offices of that State. In 1863 he came to this place, and here continued in the profession of law up to the time of his death. He was characterized as a fearless, outspoken man, tenacious in his opinions, but courteous and respectful toward those who honestly differed with him; honorable and conscientious in his dealings, charitable and humane toward those in need, and ever evinced a warm support for those men and measures which he thought would promote the welfare of his country.

While engaged reading an article in a newspaper on the condition of the country, Mr. McDaniels passed from life to death without a struggle, like one falling asleep.

CLOSING SCENES OF THE LEGISLATURE—RIOTOUS PROCEEDINGS.

The intensely Democratic Legislature of Idaho has finally adjourned. True to its Democratic instincts, it broke up in a row. The annexed account is from the Boise Statesman of the 15th inst.:

Before this number of the Statesman reaches its readers all sorts of exaggerated rumors will have spread concerning the events of last Friday and Saturday. It is not expected that anything near the truth has been circulated, for indeed, that were a matter of almost impossibility, considering the excited state of the public mind during the three days ending Sunday night. We have issued no extras to herald a state of war, or to excite the public mind or exaggerate facts as is usually the case with the press, but now that the excitement is abated we purpose impartially to put the facts upon record, let them justify or condemn whom they may.

The examination of Secretary Howlett before joint convention of the Legislature on Friday night, was published in the Statesman of last Saturday. But the vituperative speeches, the threats and the animus of that body as displayed in the remarks of different members it would be difficult to give. After the examination of Mr. Howlett the proceedings of both Houses were well described to be a paroxysm of rage. A few were disposed to be cool, but the majority were too mad to reason upon any subject, and these generally controlled the last hours of the session. The chief object of attack was Mr. Howlett. Acting under the interpretation of the instructions from Secretary McCulloch by telegraph, and which we published last Saturday, he conceived it to be his duty not to disburse per diem or milage to members or issue vouchers therefor until he received further instructions. But few of the members had taken the oath of allegiance, and his instructions were positive not to pay until they did. As to whether they could now take the oath and comply with the regulations of the Treasury Department he thought they could not, at least he was unwilling to act until he received further instructions. The rage of members knew no bounds. Threats of personal violence toward him were constantly made, and knots of angry men filled the halls several hours after the adjournment; finally a general caucus was agreed upon for the next morning. At an early hour Saturday morning two or three members called upon the Secretary, and threatened him with personal violence unless the members were paid. One of them used most abusive and threatening language towards him, and the threats of others made him think it unsafe to appear on the street. He went from his office to breakfast in charge of an officer.

A caucus was held in the hall of the lower house in the forenoon. The remarks were angry, defiant and threatening. Some were in favor of forcing the Secretary to pay on pain of personal punishment, others to make him leave town. The majority finally resolved to go in a body to the Secretary's office and there forcibly demand their pay, which motion was carried into effect, and some twenty or twenty-five members entirely withdrew and would take no part in the proceedings. What transpired at the Secretary's office we did not learn, except that it was agreed to give Mr. Howlett until half-past two in the afternoon to consult with his attorneys, at which time it was agreed to meet him at the hall to hear his answer. In the mean time another meeting was held in the hall.

The excitement and disorder increased until the meeting acted more like a mob than sensible men. All manner of exciting speeches were made denouncing the Secretary and every other Federal officer in the Territory. Some said that Howlett was defaulter, and was only manœuvering to avoid exposure. Others, that Judge Cummins was a defaulter, that the dispatch to Mr. Howlett was bogus, gotten up to gain time for him and to prevent exposure. The meeting at the hall became terribly excited, and the President of the late Council amused himself by beating a fellow over the head with a revolver while being turned out of the hall. It is just to say that some of the members did their best to procure some order. Mr. Abbott mounted a table and appealed to them to keep order and refrain from doing violence. Said he: "Are we a riotous mob? or are we sensible men, met here peaceably to consult together." Order was somewhat restored, but the excitement was not abated. During Friday night and Saturday morning much of the furniture of the halls was destroyed and carried away. It is said that some persons amused themselves by throwing lamps out of the windows. Threats against Mr. Howlett and a determination to force him to payment continued.

Two o'clock came, and Mr. Howlett repaired to the hall which was filled with the late members, attaches and a crowd of spectators, a few of whom had joined the members in their disorderly conduct. From the riotous manner in which he had been treated, he thought he had reason to fear personal injury, and had called upon the U. S. Marshal, Mr. Alvord, for an escort for personal protection. Mr. Alvord accordingly called upon Col. Sinclair by his deputy, Mr. Robinson, who furnished a squad of infantry, who at this time were drawn up in front of the hall. Their appearance was the occasion of increased excitement, if such a thing could be. Half a dozen tried to speak, but no one could be heard for the confusion. The appearance of the soldiers was made the pretext for more outrageous speeches than ever before. Some seemed determined to bring on a collision; others did their best to preserve order. After perhaps twenty minutes of indescribable confusion, sufficient order was restored so that Mr. Lindsay read a letter from his attorneys to Mr. Howlett, in which they stated it to be their opinion, after due consideration, that it was his duty not to disburse any moneys until he had further instructions from the Department. Mr. Caton, of Owyhee, commenced a speech in which he declared he could prove that Judge Cummins was defaulter to the whole amount of funds supposed to be in his hands, and that was the reason of the bogus dispatch, etc. He was soon interrupted by the most terrific confusion. Several persons made a rush for Mr. Howlett, who was standing near the speaker's desk, and but for the efforts of Mr. Abbott, Judge Beatty, Dr. Mitchell, Col. Stevenson, and probably several others whom we could not distinguish in the crowd, he would have been torn in pieces. Some cried "skin him" and "shake it out of him," while the better portion swore that he should not be hurt. He was however allowed to leave the hall without serious injury. Quiet was to some extent restored, after which the infantry were withdrawn. Angry speeches and caucuses, however, continued for some hours longer. During the afternoon a proposition was started to give Mr. Howlett a bond to secure him against the payment of the funds if it should be decided to be unauthorized by the Secretary of the Treasury. Judges McBride and Cummins advised Mr. Howlett to pay such members as would take the oath of allegiance. During the evening this proposition was agreed to by all parties and carried into effect yesterday morning. We understand that all or nearly all the members and attaches visited the Secretary's office yesterday and received their pay according to the above agreement.

We obtain the subjoined items from the Owyhee Avalanche of the 12th inst.:

RUNNING.

The Shoenbar Mill has been running steadily for three weeks, with a fair prospect of continuing profitably without further interruption; Fifty tons of Silver Cord rock was first worked—the amalgamating being done by Mr. Shoenbar, and with satisfactory results. Mr. S. is fast gaining the reputation of a No. 1 amalgamator, as we have always believed him to be. Early this week the mill started on Whisky Gulch ore. We are informed by Mr. Agnew that he has a contract by which he is to receive ten tons daily from this mine. This will insure the steady running of the mill, and the mine is so convenient as to make it an easy task to keep the road open—no matter how rough the weather. There is little question that if mining and milling become separated and made different branches of business, prosperity will increase with surprising rapidity. Each are as distinct in their character as the producing of wheat and manufacturing it into flour. Whenever a farmer believes, and acts upon the belief, that he can make more cash by building grist-mills to grind his own grain, he acts unwisely and mostly fails; and the case is not much different in mining and milling quartz. The Shoenbar Mill will probably demonstrate the correctness of our position.

COUNTY FINANCES.

The joint report of the late Auditor and Treasurer shows the total indebtedness of the county to be, as per audited accounts on January 6th, 1867, $13,815 36. This does not include whatever interest there is due on outstanding registered warrants, which we learn from trustworthy sources is nominal compared to 1866. Since this report was made the Board of Commissioners has met and audited $1,372 50, and nearly that much more in bills has been presented and action upon them deferred until next Wednesday, to which time the Board adjourned. Therefore, the debt audited and incurred up to the first of January this year, may be stated at near $17,000.

This compared with the annual statement last year would show the debt to be nearly as much in fact, and therefore the current annual expense of the county for 1866 was about $40,000. The annual report for 1866 was made January 2d, and showed the audited indebtedness to that date to be $10,851 19, and bills which were previously due and audited at the January term of the Board of Commissioners, amounted to $5,000, which added to the sum named in the report would have swelled the amount to near $16,000. The report of 1866 did not include interest due—which we believe was $1,900, making the true debt of the county on January 1st, 1866, nearly $18,000. Close figuring would probably show a reduction of the debt of a thousand or more dollars in 1866. Thus far the main item of expense to the county arises from the public being unjustly though legally compelled to pay jury and other court fees in civil cases which should be borne by litigants.

WEATHER.

The weather continues mild, but Thursday night a fall of several inches of snow occurred, accompanied by considerable wind. The fact that the stages make their regular trips in to Silver over either route, should be evidence of the extraordinary mildness of the winter. A train of several Government mule teams, with thirty hundred each, in charge of Wm. Demoss, lately made the trip from Fort Boise to Camp Winthrop and back, crossing the Reynolds Creek mountains through Jordan Valley, etc.

OWYHEE ROAD AND BRIDGE COMPANY.

This company means business. Members of it have already gone to the Forks of the Owyhee with tools, provisions and laborers to commence the construction of the road and bridge. Two bridges are to be erected—one at the Forks and one about one-half mile above, and both will be completed and the road opened for travel by May 1st. The principal grading is required within two miles of the Forks, and we are informed the company has assurance of the establishment of a Government Station at that point. There is no longer any doubt of the early opening of this new and shorter route, as the company is composed of practical laboring men, who have entered upon the work with the means and will to accomplish the undertaking.

The Avalanche says of the late Act of the Legislature to appropriate money for the support of Catholic Schools:

A similar Act has no precedent within our knowledge and we doubt if in the annals of American history. Presbyterians, Baptists, Spiritualists, Methodists, Congregationalists and all other sects have equal rights to the public funds—and none have any. Whenever legislators shall be permitted to perpetrate such an outrage in favor of any of the thousand religious societies, it would be saying to every legislative body that it has the right to aid its pet denomination from the public treasury. There is no possible excuse for its passage—hence no justification. The man who favors such legislation is either ignorantly or wilfully an enemy to equal rights to public favors as well as to the public welfare. Applied to any sect, such an appropriation is so little if any better than robbing the treasury, that we fail to discover the difference.

PLEASURE.—It should be part of every child's education to witness some pleasure in its youth. How contented are men who have passed part of their young years in joy! It is a pleasure to look on their smiling countenances and read therefrom that they indeed think life a pleasure, especially when they can purchase such nice clothes as KOHN & FISHEL have for sale at such low rates.

NEW ARRANGEMENT.—THE OLD BUCHTEL & CARDWELL PHOTOGRAPH GALLERY, 80 First Street, has passed into the hands of JOSEPH BUCHTEL, Proprietor and Operator, who, having just returned from San Francisco, with ALL THE LATE IMPROVEMENTS, is prepared to take every style of picture known to the art.

NEW TO-DAY.

NOTICE TO CONTRACTORS.

SEALED PROPOSALS WILL BE RECEIVED AT the office of R. Wilcox, City Auditor and Clerk, until Monday, the 28th day of January, 1867, at 3 o'clock P. M. of said day, for doing the grading for, and furnishing the material for, and constructing side-walks and cross-walks on the east and west sides of City Block No. 132, in the time and manner provided by Ordinance No. 592, of the City of Portland.

Contractors will be required to bid so much per cubic yard for doing the grading for said walks, and so much per running foot for furnishing material and constructing side-walks, with the cross-walks included.

Specifications and drawings can be seen at the office of C. W. Burrage, City Surveyor.

The committee reserve the right to reject any and all bids deemed unreasonable.

Bonds will be required for the faithful performance of the work.

The bill of S. & S Simmons for McAdamizing two blocks on B street, was taken from the table and ordered paid, $1,185

The Council adjourned

THE STEAMER AJAX —We find in a California paper the following notice of the steamer Ajax, which is soon to be placed on the San Francisco and Portland trade The Ajax, it will be remembered, made two trips to the Hawaiian Islands last winter, and since April has been lying idle in the harbor. Since then she has had a fine saloon built on her deck, aft, in place of two rows of state-rooms and has been considerably refitted so as to add to the comfort of passengers. During the last three months a gang of mechanics have been constantly at work overhauling her machinery and boilers, while the ship has been thoroughly cleansed from stem to stern. A valuable addition to her machinery has also been made by the use of a patent marine governor which had been previously tried on the California, and found to be of great advantage in economy of steam and steady working of the engine. Her boilers have been thoroughly cleaned, the tubes being taken out and the scales and salt which had formed in some instances three inches thick, removed Experiments made since the cleaning show that with a third less fuel a greater amount of steam can be made than was the case when she made her trips to Honolulu, and it is now expected that the Ajax will prove as fast as she did on her trial trip, when she steamed an average of 11½ miles per hour

A PICTURE.—Several wags on Front street, who are in no danger of having the dyspepsia or the blues, yesterday seized upon Mr Smith's little, old white mule as a fit object for fun Mr Smith had left him hitched to an awning post in front of D W Williams' store, and when he came back he found him advertised "For Sale" by a large card poster, hanging by a string on either flank The mule stood braced back in regular mulish style, as if by some unseen influence, impelling him forward "L larfed when he saw the placards, but he larfed more when he discovered the cause of the animal's bracing ... The boys had drawn a pair of old boots on his fore feet, which the mule, notwithstanding, took in high dudgeon, and immediately placed himself in position for ... ing any movement the enemy might contemplate While the mule braced and Smith larfed, a photographist on the other side of the street brought his instrument to bear on the scene, but Smith discovering this masked battery, darted into Williams just in time to leave the mule alone on the picture then and there taken

BECOMING A NUISANCE.—The practice among boys and some children of older growth, of pelting every Chinaman who appears on the street, with snowballs, is becoming a nuisance. The Chinamen thus assaulted are constantly pestering the authorities with complaints and appeals to have the boys arrested and it is difficult to make John see that the pelting exercises are only jokes Draymen too, have good reason to complain of the same nuisance; for in frequent instances, they are in danger of having a runaway or a collision, being unable to dodge a shower of balls and control their horses at the same time Persons who carry this species of sport to excess are liable to be brought unpleasantly to a halt by a charge of ... it and battery at the hands of the suffering parties.

THE TELEGRAPH.—We learned from the operator here that the telegraph line was yesterday working from this city to Roseburg and from California through to Canyonville. The stage made a trip between the two disconnected points on Thursday and we had hoped that it brought dispatches through which would be telegraphed to us from Roseburg on Friday; but as we got nothing, it is concluded that the stage did not bring any news Between Roseburg and Canyonville, the late storm and flood carried away a considerable wire which it has been impossible as yet, to supply This accounts for the long delay in getting the line up

COUNCIL PROCEEDINGS.—The non-appearance of the proceedings of the Council in yesterday morning's paper is accounted for by a misunderstanding in relation to the night of meeting, the reporter supposing that the resolution adopted by the Council last week had the effect to fix the meeting of this week on Friday night. One or two of the Councilmen, and perhaps more of them understood it in the same way, and would not have attended but for being notified to the contrary The reporter was not dead, nor, yet, sleeping. The proceedings as published this morning are procured from the clerk's record

"SOLD."—Somebody thinks that "Somebody was unwittingly sold" on the falling of the water at Oregon City on Wednesday Now, if there is any one thing we utterly abominate more than another thing it is to make a nice joke and then have to explain it to "somebody" who is too dull to "see it." Hereafter however if we have occasion to relate a joke we will add side notes explaining the point minutely, for the special benefit of ...

THE CROSSINGS.—Praise deserved and bestowed is only paid justice. Those gentlemen who without any other incentive than a commendable public spirit, cleared the the cross walks adjoining their business corners, yesterday, are entitled to the thanks of all pedestrians and especially of the ladies who had occasion to pass upon the streets. We would call names but for the modesty of the ... who thus served the public

FANCY FAIR AT VANCOUVER —The Register says "It is proposed to hold a fair in this town some time during the coming month to aid in maintaining the Orphan Asylum kept by the Sisters of Charity A great number of orphans are kept and educated at this asylum by the Sisters, who are destitute of all means except occasional contributions from the outside world, therefore this project commends itself strongly to the benevolent feelings of the community"

All about the Confederate Property in England

A correspondent of the New York Tribune writing from London, Dec 2d, gives the following in relation to the rebel property in England claimed by the United States

On Monday last we had the explanation of the rumors which have been rife here for the last month, and which have been repeated in almost all our newspapers, that the President's Government had waived all claims against Fraser, Trenholm & Co and the other Confederate agents in this country during the late war, as a sort of precursor to the general amnesty policy which we are instructed to expect ere long from those august persons The explanation came in the shape of a motion to dismiss the suit in chancery of the United States agt Trioleau and the evidence upon which it was based shows that the newspaper rumors were founded on something nearly approaching to fact In order to make myself clear to your readers, I must shortly state what has been done since the end of the war with respect to property of the late Rebel Government in this country In the year 1865 Mr Dudley the United States Consul at Liverpool, who was of all men most competent to act with effect in this matter, from his intimate knowledge of all that had been done by Confederate agents and sympathizers in their great stronghold in England was specially instructed by your Department of State to commence such legal proceedings as he should deem wise for the recovery of this property Accordingly, the suit of the United States agt Trioleau was instituted in 1865, commonly known here as "the cotton suit" its object being to rescue for the United States certain specified and ear marked consignments of cotton in the hands of the Rebel Government. This suit is still in an early stage, there having been much hard fighting over the interrogations and cross interrogations filed by the several parties, but one important point was already gained by the United States—the defendants had been required to find security for £20 000 From further information gained by him during the prosecution of the Cotton suit Mr Dudley, in the Summer of the present year commenced a second suit of the United States agt. Wagner, the defendants being the partners of the house of Fraser, Trenholm & Co, the object of which was a general account and discovery of all the transactions of the mercantile house in their capacity as financial agents for the Rebel Government, and payment of what should be found due to the United States The suit was purposely framed so as to include property of every kind except the cotton—the subject of the suit of the United States agt Trioleau At this point new actors appear on the scene in the shape of Mr Morse, the Consul for London, and Mr Gibbs, agent for the Treasury Department of the United States in Europe These gentlemen, so far as we know at present, without any consultation with Mr. Dudley, commenced proceedings in the Admiralty Court here, to enforce the claim of the United States to certain vessels in the possession of Messrs. Fraser, Trenholm & Co They seized these ships in the name of the United States, and without regard to the effect which such a proceeding would have upon the Chancery suit, for a general account, in which this portion of the Confederate estate—to use a technical term—was already included They were met by a motion on the part of the defendant to find security for the value of the ships they had caused to be seized. This they decline to give, whether from lack of authority in this respect, or from discovering too late that these independent and high handed proceedings, if persisted in, would ruin the chances of success in the infinitely more important suits pending in Chancery, I, of course, do not know However, having made the first gigantic blunder, I scarcely know how they could have got out of it better.

The next act in this curious drama took place on the 6th of this month of November, on which day Messrs Morse & Gibbs, disgusted perhaps with the result of their efforts in the Court of Admiralty, the responsibility for which Mr Dudley and his legal advisers here decline to share, descended on Liverpool, in the temporary absence of Mr. Dudley, to whom they had given no information whatever of their intention or object They at once obtained an interview with Mr Trioleau of the firm of Fraser, Trenholm & Co, and the solicitor of that firm, themselves accompanied by no legal adviser, produced their letters of authorization from the Treasury Department and the Secretary of State, and concluded the terms of an agreement by which all legal proceedings pending between the United States and the mercantile firm, here and in your courts, were to be stayed The document, however, is so important that I inclose you a full copy, rather than attempt to give the results. It runs as follows

Memorandum of Agreement made this sixth day of November, one thousand eight hundred and sixty six, between Montgomery Gibbs, Esq, Agent in Europe for the Treasury Department of the United States of America, and Freeman Harlow Morse, Esq, Consul at London for the said United States, of the one part, and Messrs Fraser, Trenholm & Co, of Liverpool, merchants, of the other part, it is mutually agreed as follows

1 That the claims of Messrs Fraser, Trenholm & Co. against certain property of the late Confederate States, under their control, is agreed at £150,000

2 Messrs Fraser, Trenholm & Co are to declare what property they have under their control, and where it is, it being understood that among this property are the five following ships The Ruby, the Rosina, the Penguin, the Owl, and the Lark

3 The property is to be sold at the best price obtainable by Messrs Fraser, Trenholm & Co and the proceeds to be applied to the payment of the £150,000, and any surplus to be accounted for and paid over to the United States Government

4 The United States Consul, Mr Morris, and the United States Government to give every assistance in disposing of the property, and if proper and expedient to grant an American register to all or any of the said ships

5 All suits now pending, either in Great Britain or the United States, between Messrs Fraser, Trenholm & Co, or any of them, and the United States, to be abandoned, each party paying their own costs.

6 Messrs Fraser, Trenholm & Co to furnish Mr Morse and Mr Gibbs with an account showing how the indebtedness to them is made out, and to allow them, and an accountant acceptable to Messrs Fraser, Trenholm & Co, to inspect their books it being understood that any information thus derived shall not be used against any one in any action or proceeding except for the recovery of property In witness, etc

MONTGOMERY GIBBS, Agent, &c,
F H MORSE, U S C,
FRASER, TRENHOLM & CO

By this arrangement you will at once perceive that Messrs Fraser, Trenholm & Co are not even required to declare on oath what property of the late rebel Government remains under their control Five only out of 9 ships whose names are known are to be accounted for and the fortunate firm are to be allowed a hard £150,000 out of the first assets realized by them, the conduct of all sales being left in their hands In addition to this trifling gratuity, the four ships not mentioned in the agreement, viz the Ariel, Fox, Badger, and Wasp remain their property and no account whatever is required of any of the property realized by the firm before the date of the agreement Naturally enough, the firm apply at once to the Court of Chancery to stay all proceedings in the cotton suit and to obtain judicial sanction to this agreeable compromise The motion is resisted by Mr Dudley, on behalf of the United States, on the ground that on the face of their letters of authorization they are required to obtain the written concurrence of the American Minister at London to any compromise they might negotiate, which concurrence they have not obtained The objection seems a good one so that the arrangement will probably fall through unless confirmed by your Government Of course I only know what is proved in evidence and open to all the world, and there may be reasons behind for sanctioning one of the most one sided bargains on a great scale which has ever come before our Courts On the face of the proceeding however, one may safely congratulate Messrs Frazer, Trenholm etc on the clemency of the Government with which they have to do, and agree in the remark of one of the counsel for the United States on leaving the Court that the compromise has probably given the lucky firm at least $100 000 more than they could ever have got in the suit not to mention the little bonus of the four ships and all property which had passed from under their control before the 6th November 1866

The undersigned who has always enjoyed public confidence for the excellent quality of his Coffee, neglects nothing to justify the good name acquired by his productions the sale of which daily increases The acknowledged superiority of his merchandise which commands here and in the markets of the interior a relatively higher price excites the cupidity of some manufacturers, and every day he sees increasing the number of those who by counterfeit or imitation of his mark, seek to deceive the public palming upon them their inferior productions for the genuine G VENARD CHARTRES COFFEE This fraud can deceive nobody after a trial but only adds to the favorable opinion of the consumers the very flattering though unwilling testimony of the counterfeiters Nevertheless buyers should be forewarned and placed on their guard against this practice

The Testimony as to Surratt's Connection with the Assassination Plot.

The capture of Surratt and the prospect that he will soon be brought to trial, gives a new interest to the testimony connecting him with the assassination conspiracy We therefore give it a place

TESTIMONY OF LOUIS J WEICHMANN

Mrs Surratt and her family are Catholics Mrs Surratt was a member of the Catholic Church and a regular attendant of its services, I generally accompanied her to church on Sunday she went to her religious duties (confession) at least every two weeks—sometimes early in the morning sometimes at late mass—and was apparently doing all her duties to God and man up to the time of the assassination John H Surratt is a Catholic, and was a student of divinity at the same college (St Charles College Maryland) as myself * * * His character at college was excellent on leaving college he shed tears and the President, approaching him, told him not to weep that his conduct had been so excellent during the three years he had been there that he would always be remembered by those who had charge of the institution * * * John H Surratt is about six feet high, with very prominent forehead a very large nose and sunken eyes he has a goatee and very long hair of a light color my acquaintance with John H Surratt commenced in the Fall of 1859, at St Charles College, Maryland, we left college together in the Summer of 1862 and I renewed my acquaintance with him in January, 1863, in this city (Washington), on the 1st of November, 1864, I went to board at the house of his mother, Mrs Surratt, at No 541 H street, between Sixth and Seventh and boarded there up to the time of the assassination (the house now reported to be haunted), I was upon very intimate terms with John H Surratt seeing him almost every day when he was at home, we sat at the same table, roomed together and shared the same bed * * * Surratt was continually speaking about cotton speculations and of going to Europe, and I heard Atzeroth once remark that he also was going to Europe, but he was going on horseback, from that remark I concluded he was going South.

SURRATT, PAYNE AND ATZEROTH

Some time in March, a man calling himself Wood came to Mrs. Surratt's and inquired for John H. Surratt, that is the man (pointing to Lewis Payne), I went to the door and told him Surratt was not at home, he thereupon expressed a desire to see Mrs Surratt he stopped at the house all night, he had supper served up to my room, I took it to him from the kitchen, he represented himself as a Baptist preacher, about three weeks after he called again, on the last occasion he was dressed in a complete suit of gray, on returning from my office one day while Payne was there, I went up stairs to the third story, and found Surratt and Payne seated on a bed, playing with bowie-knives, there were also two revolvers and four sets of new spurs [The witness here identified one of the spurs and a bowie knife found in Atzeroth's room at the Kirkwood House—the house in which Vice President Johnson then boarded—as the same he saw Surratt and Payne playing with] I recognize the prisoner Atzeroth, he first called to Mrs Surratt's house, as near as I can remember, about three weeks after I formed the acquaintance of Booth and inquired for John H Surratt, or Mrs Surratt, since then he must have been at the house ten or fifteen times, I went with John H. Surratt to the Herndon House, about the 19th of March, for the purpose of renting a room for a delicate gentleman, who was to have his meals sent up to his room, no name was mentioned, * * * one day I met Atzeroth on the street and asked him where he was going, he said he was going to the Herndon House to see Payne, I then asked, "Is it Payne who is at the Herndon House?" He said, "Yes."

SURRATT, DR MUDD AND BOOTH.

About the 15th of January last I was passing down Seventh street, in company with John H Surratt, and when opposite Odd Fellows' Hall some one called out, "Surratt, Surratt," and turning round, he recognized an old acquaintance of his, Dr Samuel A Mudd, of Charles county, Maryland, that gentleman there (pointing to the accused, Samuel A. Mudd), he and John Wilkes Booth were walking together, Surratt introduced Dr Mudd to us, and Booth invited us to his room at the National Hotel, when we arrived there he told us to be seated, and ordered cigars and wine for four; after a private consultation between Booth and Mudd in the passage, Booth called Surratt out; on their return Mudd apologized to me for his private conversation, * * * afterward they were seated round the center table, when Booth took out an envelop, and on the back of it made marks with a pencil; * * * I should not consider it writing, from the motion of the pencil, it was more like roads or lines, after this interview at the National Hotel Booth called at Mrs Surratt's frequently, generally asking for John H. Surratt, and, in his absence, for Mrs Surratt, their interviews were always apart from other persons; I have been in the parlor in company with Booth when Booth has taken Surratt up stairs to engage in private conversation, which would sometimes occur with Mrs Surratt

SURRATT IN RICHMOND AND CANADA

About the 17th of March last a Mrs. Slater came to Mrs Surratt's house and stopped there one night; this lady went to Canada and Richmond; on Saturday, March 23d, John H Surratt drove her and Mrs Surratt into the country in a buggy, leaving about eight in the morning, * * * Mrs. Surratt told me on her return that John had gone to Richmond with Mrs Slater, Mrs Slater, I understood, was to have met a man by the name of Howell, a blockade-runner, but he was captured on the 24th of March—so Surratt took her back to Richmond, Mrs Slater, as I understood from Mrs Surratt, was either a blockade-runner or a bearer of dispatches

Surratt returned from Richmond on the 3d of April, the day the news of the fall of Richmond was received, I had some conversation with him about the fall of Richmond, and he seemed incredulous; he told me that he did not believe it, that he had seen Benjamin and Davis in Richmond, and they told him that Richmond would not be evacuated, Surratt only remained in the city about an hour, when he told me he was going to Montreal, and asked me to walk down the street with him and take some oysters, he left that evening, saying he was going to Montreal, and I have not seen him since, saw him have about nine or eleven twenty-dollar gold pieces in his possession, and fifty dollars in greenbacks, when he came from Richmond, and just before leaving for Canada he exchanged forty dollars in gold for sixty dollars in greenbacks with Holahan I afterwards learned in Montreal that Surratt arrived there on the sixth of April, and left on the 12th for the States, returned on the 18th and engaged rooms at the St Lawrence Hall, and left again that night, and was seen to leave the house of one Porterfield, in company with three others in a wagon. I arrived at Montreal on the 19th, and my knowledge was derived from the register of St. Lawrence Hall.

DISPATCH FROM BOOTH TO SURRATT.

I received this dispatch and delivered it to John H. Surratt on the same day:

NEW YORK, March 23, 1865

To Weichman, 541 H street Tell John to telegraph number and street at once.—J. BOOTH

[The original of the dispatch was handed the witness, who identified the handwriting of John Wilkes Booth.]

When I delivered the dispatch to John H. Surratt, I asked him what particular number and street was meant, and he said, "Don't be so d—ned inquisitive"

MRS SURRATT'S COMPLICITY.

On the Tuesday previous to the Friday of the assassination I was sent by Mrs Surratt to the National Hotel to see Booth, for the purpose of getting his buggy * * Booth said he had sold his buggy, but gave me $10 that I might hire one * * I drove Mrs. Surratt to Surrattsville on that day, on Friday, the day of the assassination, I went to Howard's stable about 2½ o'clock, having been sent there by Mrs Surratt, for the purpose of hiring a buggy * * I drove her to Surrattsville the same day, arriving there about 4½ o'clock in the afternoon, we stopped at the house of Lloyd, who keeps a tavern there, * * Just before leaving the city, as I was going to the door, I saw Booth in the parlor, and Mrs Surratt was speaking with him, they were alone, he did not remain more than three or four minutes and immediately after he left Mrs Surratt and I started. * * We halted once, when about three miles from Washington, when, observing that there were pickets along the road, she hailed an old farmer, and wanted to know if they would remain there all night, on being told that they were withdrawn about 8 o'clock in the evening she said she was "glad to know it," she was very anxious to be at home at 9 o'clock, saying that she had made an engagement with some gentleman, who were to meet her at that hour, asked her if it was Booth, she answered neither yes nor no.

PUNISHMENT FOR THE SINS OF THE PEOPLE

When about a mile from the city, and from the top of the hill seeing Washington swimming in a flood of light, raising her hands she said "I am afraid this rejoicing will be turned into mourning, and all this glory into sadness, I asked her what she meant, she replied that after sunshine there was always a storm, and that the people were too proud and licentious, and that God would punish them

* * * Booth called at 9, it was his last visit, Mrs Surratt was alone with him for a few minutes in the parlor, I was in the dining room at the time and as soon as I had taken tea I repaired thither Mrs Surratt's former cheerfulness had left her she was very nervous agitated and restless * * * When the detectives had gone (3 A M of the 15th) and when her daughter Anna, almost frantic cried out Oh ma! just think of that man (J W Booth) having been here one hour before the assassination! I am afraid it will bring suspicion upon us "Anna" to me what will she replied I am resigned I think that J Wilkes Booth was only an instrument in the hands of the Almighty to punish this proud and licentious people

TESTIMONY OF JOHN T HOLAHAN

During the winter and spring and up to the night of the assassination I boarded with Mrs Surratt while there I saw Atzeroth several times though I did not know him by that name he seemed to be with John H Surratt most of the time I also saw Payne there once at breakfast the name by which I knew him was Wood John Wilkes Booth I have seen there frequently I have seen him in the parlor with Mrs Surratt and the young ladies I remember about two weeks before the assassination seeing a carriage at Mrs Surratt's door and a person whom I afterward learned to be Mrs Slater (a rebel spy and blockade runner) got into it one morning as I was dressing, Mrs Surratt was on the pavement talking to this person as she was getting into the carriage John H Surratt was with this Mrs Slater, this was the last time I saw John H Surratt previous to the 3d of April the day on which the news of the fall of Richmond was received, he knocked at the door of my room at about ten o'clock after I was in bed and wished to exchange some gold for greenbacks, and I gave him $60 in paper for $40 in gold, he said he wanted to go to New York, and that he could not get it exchanged in time to leave by the early train in the morning

MRS SURRATT A CONSPIRATOR

Testimony of John M Loyd—I reside at Mrs Surratt's tavern, Surrattsville about eleven miles from Washington, some five or six weeks before the assassination of the President, John H Surratt, Davis E Harold and G A Atzeroth came to my house Atzeroth and Surratt drove up to my house in the morning first, and went toward The Bee, a Post Office about five miles below there, they had not been gone more than half an hour when they returned with Harold * * * John H Surratt then called me into the front parlor, and on the sofa were two carbines, with ammunition, also, a rope from fifteen to twenty feet in length, and a monkey wrench, Surratt asked me to take care of these things, and to conceal the carbines, I told him there was no place to conceal them * * * He then took me into a room in the back part of the building and showed me where I could put them underneath the joists of the second floor * * * Surratt assisted me in carrying them up stairs, with the cartridge boxes I put them in there according to his direction Surratt said he just wanted those articles to stay for a few days, and he would call for them On the Tuesday before the assassination of the President I was coming to Washington, and I met Mrs Surratt on the road * * * When she first broached the subject to me about the articles at my place, I did not know what she had reference to Then she came out plainer and asked me about the "shooting irons" I told her they were hid away far back * * * She told me to get them ready—that they would be wanted soon I told her that I had an idea of having them buried—that I was very uneasy about having them there On the 14th of April (the day of the assassination), I went to Marlboro to attend a trial there, and in the evening when I got home about 5 o'clock, I found Mrs Surratt there She met me at the wood pile, as I drove in the yard with some fish and oysters in my buggy She told me to have those shooting irons ready that night there would be some parties who would call for them She gave me something wrapped in a piece of paper, which I took up stairs and found to be a field glass * * * The carbines and cartridge boxes remained concealed between the joists and ceiling of an unfinished room until that Friday, when Mrs Surratt gave me information that they would be wanted that night * * * I then took them out according to her directions, and put them in my bedroom, so as to have them convenient for any parties that might call that night I also prepared two bottles of whisky according to her directions Just about midnight on Friday, the 14th, Harold came into the house and said "Loyd, for God's sake make haste and get those things" * * From the way he spoke, he had been apprised that I already knew what I was to give him Booth did not come in, he remained on his horse Harold came into the house and got the whisky and took it out to him, and he drank while sitting on the horse * * * They took only one of the carbines Booth said he could not take his, because his leg was broken. * * * Just as they were about leaving Booth said, "I will tell you some news if you want to hear it," or something to that effect "Well," said he, "I am pretty certain we have assassinated the President and Secretary Seward" * * * Between 8 and 9 next morning the news was received of the assassination of the President. [The carbine taken from Booth at Garret's barn, on being shown to the witness, was identified as one of those that had been left with him by Surratt.] I took off the cover of one of the carbines that Surratt brought me, and their peculiar kind of breech attracted my attention, never having seen one like it before [Spencer's breech loading carbine, sixteen charges]

FAILURE OF A PLOT TO CAPTURE THE PRESIDENT

Louis Weichman's testimony During Payne's second visit to Mrs Surratt's house, some time after the 4th of March, I retired from my office one day at half past 4 o'clock I went to my room and ringing the bell for Dan, the negro servant, told him to bring me some water, and at the same time inquired where John had gone He told me Massa John had left the front of the house with six others, on horseback, about half past 2 o clock. On going down to dinner I found Mrs Surratt in the passage She was weeping bitterly, and I endeavored to console her She said "John is gone away, go down to dinner and make the best of your dinner you can" After dinner I went to my room, sat down, commenced reading, and about half past six o'clock Surratt came in much excited I said, "John, what is the matter, why are you so much excited?" He replied "I will shoot any one that comes in this room, my prospect is gone, my hopes are blighted" In ten minutes after the prisoner Payne came into the room He was very much excited, and I noticed he had a pistol About fifteen minutes afterward Booth came into the room, and Booth was so excited that he walked around the room very frantically and did not notice me He had a whip in his hand I spoke to him and recognizing me he said, "I did not see you" The three then went up stairs into the back room, in the third story, and must have remained there about thirty minutes, when they left the house altogether On Surratt's returning home I asked him where he had left his friend Payne. He said Payne had gone to Baltimore, and Booth he said had gone to New York * * * The negro boy afterwards told me that of the seven men who had gone out riding that afternoon, he said one was Massa John, and Booth and Port Tobacco, (Atzeroth) and that man who was stopping at the house whom I recognized as Payne Though they were very much excited when they came into the room, they were very guarded indeed Payne made no remark at all Those excited remarks by Surratt were the only ones made Surratt once made the remark to me that if he succeeded in his "cotton operation," his country would lose him forever, and that his name would go down green to posterity.

PORTLAND FRIDAY 2 P M }

The latest quotations of gold in New York 1 3⅛ Legal Tenders in San Francisco 74c This quotation are a week old the telegraph not having worked since Friday the 18th

In the total absence of news from San Francisco prices have undergone no particular change Trade has been almost entirely suspended owing to the temporary stoppage of freighting and the unfavorable weather Receipts of produce from the interior have been extremely light only such as arrived at Oregon City prior to the flood in the upper Willamette coming forward

The Pacific is to be looked for this evening and the Fidelity to night or to-morrow The news by them may have some effect upon the markets which cannot however be anticipated We hope to be placed in a day or two in telegraphic communication with San Francisco and the East till then business must remain more or less as it has been for the week quite uncertain in all its details

We add to our form of quotations several articles which will be found under appropriate heads

HAVING LEASED THE ABOVE NAMED HOTEL, is prepared to accommodate the traveling public and ONE HUNDRED REGULAR BOARDERS, in as good style as any House on the Coast He has determined to make the Bennett as good as the best and better than any public house in Salem He will soon complete some important improvements which will add greatly to its appearance and comfort and intends to merit and hopes to receive his share of patronage.

He has secured the services of Charley (known to be the best cook in Salem and one of the best in the whole country) and other competent persons to manage the culinary department and is resolved to set as good a table as can be found anywhere—not in clap-trap, pomp and show flummery and fine furniture, but in an abundant supply of the very best the market affords

His Bar-room will be kept warmed and lighted, and well supplied with newspapers periodicals and other suitable reading matter, and kept in a manner which will make it an agreeable resort

In short he intends making an effort to please ALL who stop at the BENNETT HOUSE And he most respectfully requests his friends everywhere to give the old and well known stand at least one more trial before concluding they can do as well elsewhere, and promises if they are not well treated and properly cared for and at reasonable figures it will not be the fault of the public's most obedient and most humble servant,

DR G W. BROWN

HAS located in Portland in CARTER'S NEW BUILDING for the permanent cure of all private diseases such as syphilis, gonorrhea gleet strictures &c He also calls the attention of those suffering with

DISEASES OF THE EYES

to call at his office and be at once restored Surgical operations SKILLFULLY performed on the EYES for film cataract, strabismus or cross eyes

Below are some of the many testimonials

This is to certify that I John B Jodwan, was blind for over nine years, and I tried all means of a cure, and many doctors and all of no effect and I spent all the means I had Finally I had to become a county charge, and when I was taken to Dr G W Brown, and stated my case to him and misfortune he at once commenced to treat my eyes, and now I am well, and commend all those that are suffering with diseases of the eyes to call on Dr G W Brown The reason why I do this is to let suffering humanity know where they can be cured J B JODWAN

SATURDAY, Feb 10, 1866

This is to certify that my daughter was almost blind for over seven years, and was doctored by other physicians without obtaining any relief when finally I took her to Dr G W Brown, who examined her case, and at once began to give her treatment and her sight has been entirely restored I do this to let those who are suffering with diseases of the eyes know where they can obtain a cure It has been three years since her eyes were cured and they are yet sound.

SALEM, July 21 1866.

This is to certify that I was blind for over four months and almost blind for one year and a half I tried several eye doctors but received no benefit I had almost given my case up as hopeless when fortunately I heard of Dr G W Brown, now of Salem I was induced to try him, he performed a surgical operation on my eyes and gave me treatment I soon began to recover, and in a short time I was perfectly cured I do this in justice to one who rescued me from a fate worse than death, and also for the benefit of those who are laboring under similar afflictions that they may know where they can get relief It is now about eight months since my eyes were cured and they still remain good. I can see to read the finest print without difficulty, and my eyes can bear the strongest light without pain

RULES AND REGULATIONS FOR THE PAYMENT OF BOUNTIES UNDER THE ACT TO EQUALIZE BOUNTIES, APPROVED JULY 28, 1866

WAR DEPARTMENT, ADJUTANT GENERAL'S OFFICE, }
WASHINGTON, September 15, 1866 }

1 All applications shall be filed within the period of six months, from the 1st day of October, 1866, and before any payments are made, shall be classified by regiments battalions, or other separate organizations, and no application filed after that period shall be settled until after the former shall have been paid

2. No application shall be entertained unless accompanied by the original discharge of the soldier and the affidavit required by the fourteenth section of the Act, and the further affidavit that he has not received, nor is he entitled to receive from the United States, under any laws or regulations prior to the Act of July 28, 1866 more than $100 bounty for any and all military service rendered by him during the late rebellion, over and above the amount therein claimed,

3 All applications for the additional bounty authorized by this Act from surviving soldiers shall be in the form hereinafter prescribed, and the evidence of identity shall be the same as is now required and applications from the heirs of deceased soldiers shall be in the form now required by the Treasury Department

4 As soon as the examination of the claims of any regiment, or other independent organization shall have been properly acted upon the Paymaster General shall take the necessary steps for their prompt payment

5 A register shall be kept in the Paymaster General's office, and also in the office of the Second Auditor of all claims presented under the law, in which the claimants will be classified by regiments, etc If the claims be allowed the amount of bounty paid to each will be noted and if rejected the cause of rejection will be distinctly stated

6. In the applications for bounty, as required by the third of these rules, the affidavit shall state each and every period of service rendered by the claimant and also that he never served otherwise than as herein stated

7 Organizations irregularly in the service of the United States, or called out for special purposes as State Militia, Home Guards, etc, and not included in the general bounty laws, are not included within the meaning of the Act.

8 Soldiers enlisted for "three years or during the war" who were discharged by reason of the termination of the war shall be considered as having served out the period of their enlistment, and are entitled to bounty under this Act

9, The minority of heirs, claimants for bounty under this Act, must be proven to have existed at the date of its passage Parents shall receive jointly the bounty to which they may be entitled as heirs, unless the father has abandoned the support of his family in which case it shall be paid to the mother Non residence in the United States shall not be a bar to the claim of heirs, who would otherwise legally inherit.

The provisions of the Act exclude from its benefits the following classes

1 Those who after serving the full period of their enlistment, were dishonorably discharged at its expiration

2 Those discharged during enlistment by way of favor or punishment

3 Those discharged on account of disability contracted in the service but not occasioned by wounds received "in the line of duty" who shall not have previously served two or three years respectively at the time of discharge

4 Those discharged on account of disability existing at the time of their enlistment

5 The heirs of those who have died since their discharge of wounds or disease not contracted in the service and in the line of duty

6 The surviving soldiers and heirs of deceased soldiers who under previous laws, have received or are entitled to receive a bounty of more than $100 from the United States

7 The surviving soldiers as well as the heirs of deceased soldiers when such soldiers have bartered, sold, assigned loaned, transferred exchanged or given away their final discharge papers, or any interest in the bounty provided by this or any other Act of Congress

8 The Act of the 28th of July 1866 creates no right of inheritance beyond those vested by the law under which these heirs received or were entitled to receive the original bounty and debars certain classes, brothers and sisters of heirs that were entitled to receive the original bounty from any claim for the additional bounty provided by this Act

Respectfully referred to the Attorney General for his opinion on the point whether the rules and regulations as within amended are in conformity with law
EDWIN M. STANTON,
September 14 1866. Secretary of War

I have examined these amended regulations, and am of opinion they are in conformity with law

OF BALTIMORE,

ARE ACKNOWLEDGED BY THE ENTIRE SAN Francisco Jobbing trade to be beyond comparison the best that come to this market That

THEIR EXCELLENCE IS NOT IMAGINARY,

Any one who has tried them will admit, and the simple secret of their superiority lies in the extreme care and immense expense lavished upon their preparation Each Oyster is opened by hand with the knife with strict regard to the preservation of the Liquor by which means all the original flavor is retained Contrast this method with the one usually pursued of opening the Oysters in bulk by steaming by which means the native Liquor is lost and a manufactured one is substituted and the reason for the actual superiority of this brand is at once apparent

Dr Gibbon's Dispensary,

616 KEARNEY STREET, NEAR COMMERCIAL, San Francisco Established in 1854, for the treatment of Sexual and Seminal Diseases, such as Gonorrhoea, Gleet, Stricture Syphilis in all its forms, Seminal Weakness, Impotency, etc Skin Diseases (of years standing) and Ulcerated Legs successfully treated.

Horrible Diseases,

How many thousands of persons, both male and female, are there who are suffering out a miserable existence from the effects of secret indulgences, or from virus absorbed into the system Look at their pallid, emaciated and disfigured faces and their broken-down constitutions, disqualifying them for the happiness of marriage or the enjoyment of life In this horrid situation thousands suffer until death closes the scene Let parents, guardians, friends attend to those who are suffering with any of these horrible life-destroying maladies—see that they are cared for and cured before it be too late Send them immediately to Doctor Gibbon, a physician who has made private disease his especial study for years, and who is certain to cure the most inveterate cases without mercury or any injurious drugs It is important to those who are afflicted, or to those who are interested in the welfare of their friends to be careful of the many pretended doctors who infest all cities, publishing their skill in curing all diseases in a few days, imposing upon the public by using the names of eminent physicians from Europe and other places Be therefore careful and make strict inquiry, or you may fall into the hands of those charlatans

Seminal Weakness.

Seminal Emissions the consequence of self-abuse This solitary vice or depraved sexual indulgence, is practised by the youth of both sexes to an almost unlimited extent, producing, with unerring certainty, the following train of morbid symptoms, unless combatted by scientific medical measures, viz Sallow countenance, dark spots under the eyes, pain in the head, ringing in the ears, noise like the rustling of leaves and rattling of chariots uneasiness about the loins, weakness of the limbs, confused vision, blunted intellect loss of confidence, diffidence in approaching strangers, a dislike to form new acquaintances, a disposition to shun society, loss of memory, hectic flushes pimples and various eruptions about the face, furred tongue fetid breath, coughs, consumption night sweats, monomania and frequent insanity If relief be not obtained, should apply immediately, either in person or by letter, and have a cure effected by his new and scientific mode of treating this disease which never fails of effecting a quick and radical cure Dr G will give One Hundred Dollars to any person who will prove satisfactorily to him that he was cured of this complaint by either of the San Francisco quacks.

DOCTOR GIBBON is responsible, and will give to each patient a written instrument, binding himself to effect a radical and permanent cure or make no charge

Persons at a distance may be CURED AT HOME, by addressing a letter to Doctor Gibbon, stating case symptoms, length of time the disease has continued and have medicines promptly forwarded, free from damage and curiosity, to any part of the country with full and plain directions for use for Ten Dollars sent in registered letter or through Wells, Fargo & Co
